EAST SIDE HOTEL PROJECT GAINS SUPPORT

Belief Subscribers Willing to Back Local Hotel Bldg. Corporation

The hotel committee of the Glendale Advancement Association to bring about the building of a hotel on the Ambrosini site at the corner of Broadway and Glendale avenue, reports progress.

Mrs. Mabel Tight, chairman of the committee, reports that under the new proposition to organize subscribers to a corporation to purchase the ground and build the hotel, fifty percent of the subscribers have been seen by members of the committee, all of whom are glad to resubscribe under the new plan, and that all will be enrolled for the present project which is meeting with even greater favor than the original proposition.

Several experienced hotel men, she says, have applied for an opportunity to lease the property and to subscribe for stock, and Glendaleans not included in the original canvass have come forward and volunteered subscriptions. The amount originally subscribed was in the neighborhood of $78,000.

The entrance was effected during the day while she was temporarily absent by means of a pass key.

Several auto collisions were reported, but no serious damage.

SUNSET CANYON GOLF LINKS OPENED

Seventy-five Homes Now Under Construction in District

The Sunset Canyon Club opened their golf course and clubhouse last month. To celebrate the occasion a very elaborate dinner was served to eight hundred guests. At the present time there are over seventy-five homes in course of construction. The president of this wonderful club is Mr. Allen, a Burbank man. At a later date the Press will have a few little stories of the wonderful scenery to be found there.

BURBANK BUILDING IS CONTINUING

New building continues at a rapid pace, both business and residences. P. A. Goodrich will build a new 2-story brick opposite the State bank. We understand a local furniture company has taken a long lease and will occupy same as soon as completed.

ORDER YOUR ADVERTISING SPACE AND EXTRA COPIES OF THE NEW YEAR EDITION

We take this opportunity of telling you of our special New Year's edition of the Glendale Daily Press, giving an analytic survey of our city—the first attempted in its history.

It will tell you of the phenomenal growth of Glendale—the reason for the growth and facts to show that the growth is bound to continue. Comparison is made with cities of the same size throughout the United States, proving that in a great many instances Glendale's growth in the past two years was as great as ten years of their growth.

While this edition will make you proud of our city, all figures are based on actual facts. Everyone should send one or more of these papers to eastern friends and let them learn of our wonderful city.

As an advertising medium, this edition will be a business getter. Each page will carry in addition to ads, statistics showing growth.

Richard L. Rowe, the leading specialist of the United States in municipal surveys, has been brought to Glendale by us to prepare this survey and its value to our city will be immense.

We expect a big demand for advertising space and would recommend that you make reservations at once for representation in it. It will go everywhere. Order your extra papers that we may print enough copies to meet all demands. We are planning on printing and distributing at least 8000 of these papers, which will mean at least 35,000 readers. A great many papers will be mailed to eastern friends by our subscribers. There will be no increase in rates. Papers already wrapped for mailing may be procured at our office.

WEDDE LIQUOR SCHOOL CONFEREES CASE SET FOR JAN. 30

Important Witnesses for the State Are Out of the City

On the police court docket at the city hall the case against Bob Wedde for violation of the Volstead act which was to have come up for hearing today has been postponed to January 30 in the hope that an important witness now out of town will then be able to be present and testify. Wedde was arrested for transporting and having in his possession intoxicating liquors in violation of Glendale's Volstead act in 1921 and sustained by the Superior Court of San Joaquin County with Judge George Buck presiding, and later sustained by the Appellate Court of the 3d district of California.

The ordinance gives Glendale control of the liquor traffic within its boundaries and seven or eight convictions have been secured under it. A number of other cities like Glendale have not waited for the Wright act to be effective but have passed and are enforcing this ordinance.

FLYING SQUADRON OF PROHIBITION IN BURBANK

Mayor Crawford to Preside at Meeting at M. E. Church

NATIONAL EXCHANGE CLUB ELECTIONS TO BE HELD

The National Exchange Club will hold its annual election this evening at 7:30, preceded by a meeting of its old board of directors, at the Glenn Inn, at 5 o'clock.

D. Ripley Jackson is considered one of the strong candidates for president, although not until the nomination committee reports on candidates before the members will the decision be made.

EVERY FOUR NAMES ON THE LIST OF REGISTERED VOTERS OF GLENDAL COMPELS ANNEXATIONISTS TO SECURE AN ADDITIONAL NAME TO PETITION OF ANNEXATION ELECTION

Petition for Election Requires Only 25 Percent of the Total on the Register at Time Petition Is Presented for a Call to Test the Question

REGISTER NOW AGAINST ANNEXATION

REGISTRARS:
Mrs. Grace E. Holman 533 West California
Mrs. M. E. Myton 612 East Broadway
L. W. Ball 363 West Elk
Mrs. Harry Greenwalt 408 Oak
Mrs. F. M. Ryan 332 West Acadia
F. S. MacDougall 433 West Colorado

Prevention of an annexation election rests with the individual citizens of Glendale.

He and she alone can prevent it. And together they can absolutely shut off any chance of an election being held.

They can do this with a little effort, individually. The effect of their efforts will be a saving of approximately $500 and a much larger effort in casting the ballots necessary.

Therefore to shut off the possibility of there being an election, the Glendale Daily Press urges upon all of its readers the duty of registering on the county books, now at the homes of any of the registrars given in the Glendale Daily Press today.

The advocates of annexation are registering now and daily. They know, what you have not until now been told, that unless you take action, they can secure an annexation election, and, relying upon the usual disinclination of voters to go to the polls, may secure annexation.

They know that all the signatures they need to secure the call of an election, is 25 percent of the total number of voters registered.

By neglecting their duty—not registering for the test election—voters have made it easy apparently for the annexationists to get away with a petition for an annexation election now.

Unfortunately for them, they did not realize that the Glendale Daily Press was aware of the danger and ready to give warning in time—and that registration may be made now.

The law states clearly that the petition for annexation must bear 25 percent of the signatures of voters, REGISTERED AT THE TIME THE PETITION IS PRESENTED.

ON THE PRESENT REGISTRATION THIS WOULD MEAN APPROXIMATELY 2,608 SIGNATURES. THIS AT PRESENT IS ALL THAT IS NEEDED TO GET AN ELECTION CALL.

But, if you register now, the registration list will increase from day to day.

FOR EVERY 400 NEW REGISTRANTS, THE ANNEXATION PETITION MUST SHOW 100 NAMES IN ADDITION TO THE PERCENTAGE OF THE OLD REGISTRATION LIST UPON WHICH THE ANNEXATIONISTS CONFIDENTLY COUNTED TO BRING THEM TO THE ELECTION STAGE.

The registrars of Glendale have been invoked by the Glendale Daily Press to secure new equipment from the County Registrar and begin again the work of enrolling the voters in Glendale. They should be ready tomorrow.

Remember every four names that goes on the list of registration requires the annexationists to secure one more name of a registered voter to the petition. Two neighboring families can account for one name on the list.

In order that the general public may be accommodated, the Glendale Daily Press will have a registrar in its office beginning tomorrow morning.

He will be at the office until the demand ceases daily. The other registrars are given in the list above. Other registrars may be appointed and due notice given.

"KID" PARTY HELD BY MRS. BAXTER AND FRIENDS

Mrs. Baxter entertained with a kid party Wednesday evening at her beautiful little home, 463 Irving street. Twelve ladies were present dressed as kiddies and enjoyed an evening that will long be remembered. Guessing contests were one of the features of the evening, and the prizes were won by Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Dunn. Mrs. Bufkin was given a prize for the best looking kid. Refreshments of ice cream and cake were served and all left at a late hour feeling younger and happier. Those present were: Mrs. Mary Baxter, Miss Florence Morey, Mrs. Martha Dunn, Mrs. Isabelle Valrens, Miss Gladis Crannell, Mrs. Grace Yarbrough, Mrs. Allie Bufkin, Mrs. Annita Anderson, Mrs. Celia Fanzler, Mrs. Maud Larimore, Mrs. Loretta Williams, Miss Edith Kelly.

TRAFFIC LAW VIOLATIONS DECREASE

Judge Lowe Declares the Campaign of Education Is Having Effect

At the office of Judge Lowe, records of traffic law violations show a decided falling off and brings great satisfaction to the judge, who feels that the campaign of education in the way of jail sentences and heavy fines is having its effect in bringing about more careful driving.

The record for December shows 250 violators against 375 to 400 last month, and Officer Collins, sergeant of the traffic squad, declares there is marked improvement. Commenting on the decrease, Judge Lowe this morning said:

"The more or less drastic measures taken by Los Angeles judges have had a salutary effect which is being felt all over Southern California. Men are driving more safely and sanely. We have been reluctant to send men to jail because of the terribly congested conditions there where twice as many persons are incarcerated as the jail was built to accommodate. I notice Judge Chambers is going to increase the fines and jail sentences because he has noticed during the past few days a disposition to return to driving in excess of the speed limits."

CLASS 'A' FLOAT TO REPRESENT EAGLE ROCK

First to Be Registered in Pasadena Rose Tournament

Final arrangements are being made for the Eagle Rock float which is to call attention to Eagle Rock in the Pasadena tournament of roses, parade January 1, 1923, and as the first float to be registered, will go in as class A, No. 1.

Mrs. F. M. Runge, of 116 Florissant, who has fostered the idea of this float and secured the funds for the financing end, is now issuing a call for as many pink and white roses as Eagle Rock residents have at their disposal. More than 2000 blossoms will be used in the set piece which is to form the central figure of the float, but many more roses can be used and are needed to complete the border and lettering in an effective manner.

Those who have even one or two roses, in pink or white, are requested to bring them to the Cadillac Motor company garage on West Colorado either Saturday afternoon or Sunday morning. The float is to be made Sunday at the Cadillac garage, and a number of public spirited men and women are to assist with the work of getting the float in readiness.

Mrs. Runge is responsible for the novel set piece that is destined to prove most attractive, as this float will not be the first floral piece, made by Mrs. Runge, that has won favor. The board of trustees appropriated $150, the chamber of commerce $50, and Mrs. M. T. Lee, president of the Twentieth Century club, $12.50, dahlia show prize money, toward the cost of the float.

Materials for the construction have been donated by various firms of the city. Emil F. Swanson, owner of the Eagle Rock Lumber company, donated a quantity of lumber for this use, and the Eagle Rock hardware store donated the necessary wiring. The Cadillac Motor company is donating the truck, which will be driven by Marian F. Ayers, one of the Cadillac employees. The greenery for the float is to be cut by the Eagle Rock street department, under Claude Bramble, the street superintendent's direction.

A show of good will toward this enterprise of putting Eagle Rock on the map is being manifested by many other business houses, and the first two to make donations are the Rock Inn and the Motor Inn. Mrs. Runge stated today that a few more donations are needed to take care of the small extra expenses, but that she felt certain that the rest of the business men would support the project.

150 ATTEND BIG DAVID GREGG IN MATTISON JONES' SHRINE CLUB PARTY SANTA CLAUS ROLE TO OPEN HOME ON JAN. 3

Excellent Musical Program Is Given by Glendale Artists

The annual Christmas party of the Glendale Shrine Club, of which E. F. Heisser is president, held Wednesday night at the Pearl Keller hall, was a very successful event, with 150 guests and a large number of children present to enjoy the program which had been arranged. There were two decorated Christmas trees, with candy, fruit and presents for all of the children.

The program included vocal numbers by Wilbur Herwig, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Herwig; violin selections by Miss Hazel Linkoel, accompanied by Mrs. Pearl Curran; character impersonations by Mrs. E. M. S. Labadie of the Emerson School of Expression; saxophone solos by Earl Floyd and Michael Kupper of the Shrine Club Band; and violin selections by Paul Harman, Finstein, accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Blankenhorn. Mr. Finstein recently came to Hollywood from New York city. He was formerly a student of Paul Bytvetaki and is also a graduate of the Royal Conservatory of Music at Brussels. He has been conductor of the Halcyon hotel orchestra at Miami, Florida, and is a real musician. Following the program the Shrine Club Orchestra furnished dance music until midnight.

The committee in charge of arrangements for the Christmas party included Nobles Hayselden, Reynolds and "Dinty" Moore, who enacted the part of Santa Claus, much to the delight of the children.

It was announced that the regular January business meeting of the Shrine Club, owing to New Year's day, would be postponed from January 3 to January 10.

Instead of Clearance Sale Donates All Left Over Stock to Hospital

Good cheer was spread among the little folks at the Children's hospital in Los Angeles on Christmas day by the visit of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Roberts, who arrived with an automobile load of toys as the gift from David Gregg of the Gregg Hardware company of Glendale. At the close of a very busy holiday season Mr. Gregg packed the remaining toys, which included some very choice dolls, mechanical toys and all sorts of things to make the children happy, amounting in all to approximately $300 worth. Some of the dolls were distributed to children in Glendale, who had inadvertently been overlooked by Santa Claus and the remainder of the toys were taken to the Children's hospital where they were most cheerfully received, according to Mr. Roberts of Roberts & Echols drug store.

January 3, Mr. and Mrs. Mattison Boyd Jones will for the first time open their beautiful new home, "Bel Air" on Kenneth road, to their many friends in a social affair from 8 to 12 p.m., which will be both a house warming and an anniversary. As their home is a fine example of a typical Southern mansion and in a beautiful setting in the foothills, the event will be of more than ordinary interest to the fortunate recipients of invitations.

"NOT $3,000,000 BUT $2,000,000"

In a recent advertisement of H. L. Miller it was stated that Mr. Miller had sold over $3,000,000 insurance, when the figures should have read two million. Mr. Miller is doing a big insurance business, but does not claim so much as three million. His corrected advertisement appears elsewhere.

How One Man Succeeded by Advertising

Ten Good Points for the Retail Advertiser

REGULARITY IS FOREMOST IN SUCCESSFUL RETAILER'S PROGRAM TO KEEP BEFORE THE PUBLIC
BIG DEALER SAYS SUCCESS IS DUE TO HIS NEWSPAPER ADS

A retailer that has spent the greater part of his advertising appropriation in good newspaper copy recently related just how he carried on his advertising campaign. He gave ten points which had helped him to become a successful business man through advertising. The ten points were:

1. I advertise regularly. Every issue of the paper takes my story to its readers. I waste no energy in making people remember me. They do, and every ad means strength because of that.

2. I make every ad look like mine. Years ago I adopted a distinctive style and stuck to it. I use plenty of white space; my ads are never hard to read. And though the space I use varies, the typographical appearance always stamps them as mine.

3. I put into advertising a definite proportion of my gross sales. I fix this at the beginning of the year. My rule is to make it 3 per cent of the previous year's gross, with more if special conditions justify it. By putting most of it into newspaper advertising it accomplishes more than if I scattered my fire.

4. I brighten my ads with frequent illustrations, either humorous or practical.

5. I am careful never to overpromise. When I make claims I back them up with reasons. Then, when I really have an unusual bargain, people believe me when I "whoop 'er up" a little.

6. I "think advertising" all the time. I buy goods that will advertise well. Sometimes I buy goods just for their advertising value.

7. I get good display for my ads by seeing that the copy is in the newspaper office in plenty of time. I do this by having a definite hour to write the copy, and letting nothing interrupt it.

8. Whenever possible, I carry the nationally advertised goods that are advertised in my own home paper. I feature them. Sometimes they give me a smaller margin than fly-by-night concerns, but I find that I sell faster and make more money in the end, besides pleasing more customers.

9. I always plan my window and counter display to link up with my newspaper advertising. Each helps the other. The woman who has seen my ad in the paper is reminded of it when she passes the store and sees what's in the windows.

10. My salespeople back up my advertising. They often help with suggestions for it, and they always read it. I insist on that. Moreover, we make a special point of courtesy and helpfulness to the customer. We try to have nothing happen in the store that would be an unsatisfactory memory when the customer reads my message in the newspaper afterwards.

UNUSUAL INTEREST IN GLENDALE MUSIC CLUB CONCERT

Joint Recital of Charles
Cadman and Princess
Tsianina, Jan. 4

Unusual interest centers in the appearance of Princess Tsianina, who is to appear in joint recital with Charles Wakefield Cadman at the Glendale Music Club concert in the high school auditorium on Thursday night, January 4. Princess Tsianina has not been to the Pacific coast for four seasons, during which she has been in Europe and has studied voice with the leading teachers of America. She has a rich mezzo-soprano voice and is conceded by critics to be the foremost Indian singer. Her place among the artists in America is unique as she has the honor of being a real American born and educated here.

Tsianina's association with Mr. Cadman has been a very popular one, as she interprets his Indian music in a traditionally authentic manner. Taking her life story as a plot, Mr. Cadman has written the most successful American grand opera.

Members of the Glendale Music club are reminded that the last half of the yearly dues are now due and payable to the treasurer, Mrs. Warren Roberts, 617 East Elk avenue. As this concert is the last of the first half year course, the board of directors has voted that all who become new subscription members at this time shall be admitted to the Cadman concert, free, and upon payment of the initiation fee and dues for the remaining half year.

Rev. Fred E. Hagin, who has been raising money for Eureka Christian College in Illinois for several weeks, has arrived in Glendale today to join his wife and daughter, Fannie Alice, at 144 N. Orange. After spending a week with them he will go to Visalia to hold a revival meeting.

Two Couples Made Happy
by Pastor of Central Christian Church

On Christmas Day Rev. Clifford A. Cole united in marriage Edward George Gibson and Miss Wanda Rowena Lawrence, at the home of the bride's sister, Mrs. C. L. Whaley, 238 N. Maryland. Both bride and groom live in Los Angeles. Yesterday Rev. Cole officiated at another wedding, this time at the church. Horace E. Jones and Una Mary Steiner were the contracting parties. Both were living temporarily in the auto camp at 820 S. San Fernando road and were from Wyoming.

of her mother, Mrs. A. H. Montgomery, of 415 South Central avenue, complimenting Miss Mildred McKee, who is home for the holidays from Berkeley, where she is a student at the University of California. The afternoon was spent in playing bingo, the prize being awarded to Mrs. Herbert Besant and guest prize to Miss McKee. The invited guests included Miss Mildred McKee, Mrs. Herbert Besant, Miss Esther Besant, Mrs. George Kaufman, Mrs. Al Sullivan, Miss Madeline Love, Miss Marion Jones, Miss Ruth Ryan, Mrs. Francis Gordon, Miss Murray Longley. At the close of the afternoon refreshments were served.

Poor old Jones had met just a few old college friends, and wending his uncertain way homeward, he pondered ways of concealing his condition from his wife.

"I'll go home and read," he decided. "Who ever heard of a drunken man reading a book?"

Later Mrs. Jones heard a noise in the library.

"What on earth are you doing in there?" she asked, when she discovered it was her husband.

"Reading, my dear," Jones replied cheerfully.

"You old idiot!" she said scornfully, as she looked in at the library door. "Shut up that telephone directory and come to bed!"

Fast trains of thought frequently jump the track.

To Recommence Work of Christian Missionaries
in Africa

Dr. Ernest E. Pearson, his wife, Evelyn Utter Pearson and their two children, start this week on their long return journey to the Congo region, in Africa, to take up again the work of Christian missionaries there. They have been at home on furlough for nearly a year. Mrs. Pearson was a resident of Glendale for five years and has many friends here. Her sister, Grace, wife of Willard Learned, is at the College of Missions, Indianapolis, with her husband. They are fitting themselves for mission work in the same field and expect to go out next fall.

BARNETT SYSTEM OF HAIR GROWING, IS HERE

Mrs. Helen B. Parker is planning to open an office at 221 West Broadway on January 2 where she will give treatments in the Barnett system of growing hair. Mrs. Parker states that this will not be a beauty parlor but that she specializes on hair growing. For the benefit of the business people who are unable to get treatments during the day Mrs. Parker is planning to keep her office open each Wednesday and Friday evening.

The possibility of growing hair on a bald head is claimed by Mrs. Parker, who says that if a bald headed person follows instructions given in connection with the treatments that it is possible to do this, allowing one month's treatments for each year the person has been bald. Mrs. Parker states that this system has been particularly successful in starting new growths of hair on the heads of people who have been ill with influenza.

Truths in Epigram

Love can illumine the dark roof of poverty and lighten the fetters of the slave.—Beaconsfield.

Two things indicate a weak mind—to be silent when it is proper to speak, and to speak when it is proper to be silent.—Persian Proverb.

Every duty we omit obscures some truth we should have known.—Ruskin.

LOUISIANA'S PROBLEM

Apparently the governor of Louisiana is engaged in settling a question of moment to that commonwealth, and of great interest to its neighbors. He is seeking to establish as a fact, the generally accepted theory that a state is superior in dignity and influence to any manner of mob that may be assembled by a portion of its citizens. In other words, he will ascertain whether the ku klux klan, an unconstitutional, unnecessary and obnoxious organization, has the power to rise above the law. That it has the right to seize and penalize such persons as may have offended, is the tacit claim of the skulking marauders of the night. Sheeted and armed, they sally out to kidnap, terrorize, beat and slay. They are judge, jury and executor. They are banded assassins, held together by an abominable code for which no shadow of defense may be put forward.

Recently the state troops acting under orders of the executive discovered the hiding place of two butchered victims of some lawless mob. Whether the mob actually was made up of k. k. k. matters little. It was guided by precisely the methods that mark the criminal conduct of that outfit. The murdered men had been kidnaped, charred with a certain crime. No evidence has been adduced, that if guilty, the legal proceedings should have been displaced by additional crime.

It is said that the names of many of the murderers are known, and that some of them are the names of citizens of wealth and standing. All loyal citizens will hope that these personal circumstances shall not have any influence in causing justice to halt or to clemency to members of a table not entitled to clemency. The credit and respectability of Louisiana are at stake. It must punish the guilty or be disgraced.

THE CONTEST FOR OIL

Much of the unrest of Europe appears to be on a commercial basis. In large measure it relates to oil fields. Wherever there is an oil field, it seems to be the idea of each nation in Europe that a pressing national duty is to obtain possession. At the same time, each nation resents the precisely similar attitude of every other. Locally, such attitude is the expression of business acumen, combined with patriotic devotion. Viewed across the line dividing two peoples, the attitude becomes the sign of aggression and greed. So there is squabbling and fighting.

America is not quite free from the common vice. It views with disapprobation and distrust the efforts of England and France to win rich oil fields, as though by doing this the English and French were trespassing upon the rights of American capital. The truth is that capital will seek investment, and so long as it does this in such spirit of competition as marks legitimate commerce, the defeated rival has no ground for complaint. It is different when armies are kept on tip-toe awaiting orders to back the claim of either set.

Probably the circumstance that Americans have obtained large oil concessions in Mexico will be viewed with alarm overseas. There will be quick condemnation for a move that is nothing else than a proper enterprise. Adverse comment from abroad would be regarded here as presumptuous. Doubtless American comment on foreign schemes is thus looked upon. Meanwhile, on this side or the other, the combination able to get control of oil, or other commodity, will continue to get it.

Three men arrested as bank robbers state that they were out of jobs. There have been times when such an excuse might have been accepted for some milder form of moral laxness, but it is not good in present conditions. The records show that the thieves now engaged in plundering do not desire work. They are professional idlers, crime their only vocation. Moreover, the man who wants a job can get it. It may not be the sort exactly to his taste, but there is nothing to keep him from earning honest wages.

JARRING THE TEACHERS

Dr. Ruben Post Halleck of Louisville, with established reputation as a lecturer, has been addressing the assembled teachers of California, saying to them many sparkling things. Without doubt he has jarred the pedagogic placidity somewhat. He has informed the teachers that they are in a rut. Perhaps this is the case with a proportion of them, and if the jar proves sufficient to get them out, they will have reason to be grateful. But possibly the doctor, dignified and self-confident, is not beyond, quite unconsciously, the making of statements that glitter, but considered apart from this quality, fail to impress. For example he is quoted thus:

"The average person dies at the age of 23 years intellectually. He comes up with glorious ideals and possibilities, then life routine, lack of ambition, discouragement, self-pity and self-satisfaction write the sentence on his tombstone, 'Dead at 23 years, breathed his last at 53.'"

Frankly, the good doctor would have a hard time to establish so melancholy an hypothesis. Most people whose activities are such as chiefly to engage the mind, are not fairly launched upon a chosen career at 23. Many of them still are students, tentatively sounding the depths into which they are about to plunge. They lack the experience from which the quickening of their wits must come. They may find that the first independent efforts have taken them in the wrong direction and be live and alert enough to realize and correct the error. Also, the man, who breathes his last at 53, intellectually considered, never possessed mental lung capacity. He has not retrograded, necessarily, for he never had advanced.

Nevertheless Dr. Halleck's mission of stirring up ideas and arousing ambitions is very creditable, likely to have excellent effect.

It is cheering to hear President Fredericks of the Los Angeles chamber of commerce declare there is no danger of war with Japan. Not that thinking people ever held the opinion that such danger exists, but that a set of jingles is continually busy with the pretense that it does, and employ their energies to make their silly predictions seem to have some basis. Captain Fredericks is just back from a long visit to Japan.

An anxious father in South Bend, Ind., observing that his daughter was prone to seek company that appeared to him not to be desirable, shot the girl. He thus prevented her proposed visit to a cabaret, and promoted a visit of his own to the nearest jail. Possibly the experience will tend to a dual reformation, both daughter and father plainly being in need of discipline.

PHASES

By DR. FRANK CRANE

Governor Allen of Kansas seems to be a man of a vision quite out of the ordinary among politicians. In the first place, the idea of the industrial court which he championed in Kansas is the only practical contribution toward an intelligent settlement of the labor question that I have noticed for a number of years.

That idea, like all great ideas, is exceedingly simple. It is that disputes between employers and workers should be settled like any other disputes—that is, by courts of competent jurisdiction.

And the argument for this is that as we settle questions of property, of rights, of personal honor, and even of life and death by means of courts, there can be no reason why misunderstandings in industry cannot be settled in the same manner.

The professional labor leaders have attacked this idea bitterly. But the trouble with them is they have but one notion, which is to increase the pay of the workers and to oppose anything that shall interfere with this. As a court might decide that workers should not have more pay, they are opposed to courts.

The trouble with the labor union is that it is contentious and not judicial, that it stands for the prosperity of one class without sufficiently considering the general prosperity.

Governor Allen, therefore, is probably right when he says that the year 1923 will witness two strikes on a national scale, for the reason that a reduction of wages is bound to come in proportion to the reduction in the cost of living, and any reduction of wages will be fought by the labor leaders.

One of these strikes will be in the field of production and the other in the field of transportation. Out of these eventually food will come, for the public's mind is so sluggish that it cannot adopt proper legislation to do away with strikes by means of reason and logic, but must necessarily be stirred by destruction and danger.

In a recent interview Governor Allen said another thing that is worth thinking about. "Too many people mistake a phase for a type," he said. "The Germans, Russians and Italians have not formed types of governments. They are merely passing through a phase on the way to a clear democracy. Russia today is walking the Gogolka way, and we misunderstand it because we think that change should come about in a few years."

This truth is applicable not only abroad but at home and not only of governments and masses but of individuals. It is nothing but a restatement of the law of evolution.

We cannot understand the world and its movements until we grasp the central fact that it is all growing. And growing implies two things: first, a condition of imperfection out of which we are growing, and, second, an inner force which is making us grow.

It is the perception of that inner force that is the real basis of any intelligent optimism. We may, or what we will. The point is that there is something in all life that unceasingly pushes it along the path of development.

This is true in the industrial life today. Beneath all the conflict, the noise and confusion, there is a steady force of justice and common sense that will somehow and some time bring about a betterment of conditions.

This growth is not always peaceful. Sometimes it is attended with violence and destruction. And the amount of violence and destruction depends on the intelligence in which the people are lacking.

THE RIGHT WORD

By W. CURTIS NICHOLSON

A realistic, high grade story, full of action and sustained interest, and written in very good English.

The author's style has two peculiarities, constructions that are correct but that are not found in contemporary works, except among careful writers.

The first is the universal use of the possessive before the gerund. "The Right Word" has already pointed out that there is considerable laxness in this matter. For example, it is incorrect to write "banking on you doing it." Nor is it correct to say "that sense of Anne being in the room." But Alice Brown clears the atmosphere when she expresses herself as follows: "...and banking on your doing it." (page 22); "...that sense of Anne's being in the room" (page 25); "...danger old Nan's understanding too quickly" (page 29); "...about my letter's not being normal" (page 54); "...nor conceits of anybody's doing it" (page 228).

The foregoing examples are not only a few of those observed during the reading of the book. It will be noted that the possessive is used in the case of neuter nouns (such nouns and names of persons).

On page 515 the author got into difficulty. She could not very well put boy into the possessive case in the following: "...to face the idea of the little boy who was not right taking his maimed innocence." If the clause who was not right had been omitted, the author would undoubtedly have written as follows: "idea of the little boy's taking his maimed innocence." But as the locution stands in the novel the possessive boy's would not work for euphony. This situation could have been avoided by changing the construction as follows: to face the idea that the little boy who was not right must take his maimed innocence into some other state alone.

The second peculiarity of style is the use of "as if" instead of "as though" throughout the novel.

THE LISTENING POST

By James W. Foley

The Young Man and the Philosopher were walking side by side.

And the Young Man was discouraged.

Because he was an Idealist.

And there was so much sorrow in the world.

So much that seemed unjust and unfair and without mercy.

And it seems that way to all of us many times.

Those who may be too rich.

Those who are too poor.

Those who have beauty.

Those who are without personal attractiveness.

Those whose crops are heavy.

Those whose crops have shriveled and failed.

There are those born with genius.

Those born to dullness.

Those whose heritage is physical strength and vigor.

Those who struggle with life.

Those for whom life seems to open an easy way.

There are those who fell on the field of battle.

Those whose lives were cut down before they had really begun.

Those who died in the twenties.

Even the skies are bluest, the flowers are fairest and love and life are sweetest.

And then there are those of us who survived.

Who were not called upon to surrender health or life.

Who may have yet long years of suns and flowers and skies and love and happiness.

And the Young Man who was an Idealist was sorrowful.

And the Philosopher said:

"What are you doing to make the world less unjust and unfair and unmerciful?"

And the Young Man said:

"What can I do—a single individual?"

And the Philosopher said:

"If everybody thought that way, no thing would be done. The mercy of the merciful is merely the sum of the tenderness and mercy and humanity of the individuals."

And the Young Man said:

"I have thought about it so much I am discouraged."

And the Philosopher said: "Think less and do more."

And the Young Man said: "If there were no first drop there could be no ocean."

And the Young Man said: "Tell me what I shall do."

And the Philosopher said: "Look about you. Do those things that come first to hand. There is a crippled boy next door."

Help him. There is a needy woman near. Succor her. There is a disconsolate man hard by you. Comfort him."

The Young Man thought.

"Has my idealism then led me to neglect my work?"

And the Philosopher said: "Your idealism has been of the sort that only wrings its hands. What you want is the kind of idealism that first wrings your heart, then knots your muscles and doubles your fists, so that you may fight the things you hate, and bear some of the burdens that you lament."

The Philosopher went his way.

For there was a need he must succor.

And the Idealist stopped lamenting.

And went for to help the boy, the woman and the man who were maimed, needy and mourning.

And the Philosopher said:

"What are you doing to make the world less unjust and unfair and unmerciful?"

And the Young Man said:

"What can I do—a single individual?"

COMMENT ON DAY'S NEWS

By HENRY JAMES

Prince Christopher, a scion of Grecian royalty, such as R. is, has honored this country by his presence, and as is the gracious custom of the great, has submitted to an interview.

Somewhat asked him if he intended to go into business. At this he laughed heartily. The idea was extremely amusing to him. Born into the realm of loafers, he scorned the idea of work. "I haven't got that kind of a head," was his reply. "No, I shall not become a soda water dispenser."

Yet as a purveyor of soft drinks, Christopher, probably for the first time in his life, would be performing useful service. Why is a prince? Particularly, why is a Grecian prince? Just at this time the Grecian government is teetering. The recent and recalcitrant Constantine made a monkey of it, so to speak. The present occupant of the throne has no warranty deed. The best he could get was a quit-claim.

Christopher while here should look around him and see how his fellow countrymen excel him in purpose and usefulness. They are not ashamed to work. They do not hesitate to polish the boots of the multitude, and they garner heaps of small coin by the operation. Or down at the waterfront they tug at nets filled with fish. They cultivate the garden, or peddle the products thereof profitably and without shame.

The role of prince is becoming obsolete. It is no assurance of character or pedigree. The average prince is a weight for somebody to carry and is not worth carrying. If Christopher is of higher type, his remarks have not revealed him.

Arbuckle's restoration appears thus far to be purely technical. It is one thing to tell a man that he is welcomed back, and quite another to get the public to join in the welcome.

As said before, Arbuckle pictures as pictures are not objectionable. They are frivolous and amusing, but clean. The present objection is not to the pictures as products, but to Arbuckle as an undesirable type off the screen.

So far as memory serves only one nominee ever failed to take his seat. Ordinarily the opposition amounts to nothing but a display of bad taste.

It is frequent to read that somebody "high in society" has been caught bootlegging. As a seller or patron. Nobody seems to know exactly what is meant by being high in society, nor in the height, whatever it may be, is retained after the raid and exposure.

On Monday the people of Southern California will have an opportunity of witnessing the annual Tournament of Roses at Pasadena. This wonderful spectacle of floral beauty is California's message of sunshine and flowers to the frozen east. It is, without doubt, the greatest single piece of advertising that Southern California has and it, therefore, should be looked upon as an asset by all of California and as every community should unite in helping to make the pageant as wonderful and beautiful as possible.

WATCHING THE PARADE

By JOHN PILGRIM

This morning the installment collector came in as I sat in the chair, and the barber discontinued operations on my capillary aureole while he robbed the till of $2. When he had vanished I scolded the barber.

"Don't you know," I said, "that the things you buy on the installment plan cost you more than if you pay cash? That the installment buyers who pay must stand the loss on the installment buyers who move away?"

The barber wanted to know what he is to do when he needs something and lacks the cash to pay?

"Wait," I said, virtuously. "Save up your money until you can pay cash. Be business-like."

The barber listened until I had finished, and then he hinted at this domestic story. I have had a higher opinion of him ever since. I had regarded him as a shiftless, thriftless man, and I began to look upon him as kind and far-seeing. He is in poverty, but I believe he will make a success of the bigger business of man—leaving behind him children of whom any father might be proud.

"I have two children," he said, quietly.

He painted a picture of the modern boy and girl, resenting deeply the poverty of their home, bright, energetic, ambitious. The boy demanded better cut clothes, smarter shoes, more brilliant lies, a few dollars of pocket money. The girl had been humiliated in visiting her more fortunate schoolmates.

"Every one knows we are poor," she wept. "But I can not even bring the girls into my own room—filled with that frightful junk!"

So the barber is buying a few luxuries for his youngsters on the installment plan. He has the sound and sad philosophy of the poor. "One pays for everything one gets," he said. "If I am to keep my girl sweet and contented and away from the cheap, fast crowd I must make her home attractive. My boy must not shrink from his mates because of his threadbare clothes. His self-respect must be preserved. These things are worth paying for and I do pay for them—even if on the installment plan."

The barber, it seems to me, is a better business man than many a bigger business man.

DO YOU KNOW THAT—?

BLOC GOVERNMENT IS CERTAIN SAYS I.T.U. SECRETARY

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind., Dec. 27.—Political action should never become the dominant purpose of organized labor in the opinion of J. W. Hays, secretary-treasurer of the International Typographical Union, according to a statement issued at the union headquarters here in answer to numerous inquiries as to the organization's plans in connection with the "progressive" movement.

to undertake the achievement of some defensive and some reform legislative measures," said Mr. Hays. "That does not mean that the typographical union is becoming radical. On the contrary, we regard ourselves as conservatives with extremists on both sides. What political course will best serve to protect the interests of labor is a matter in doubt at this time."

One thing, however, is certain: Congressional blocs are going to continue doing business in American politics. And labor is going to develop strength in that way. If efforts of labor leaders I know count for anything. Objectionable as blocs may be to some politicians, they are a natural development. Geographic representation, alone, no longer serves to give voice to the aims of diverse classes and interests of the country.

"The prime purposes of a labor union are economic, benevolent and educational, but whenever an organization finds itself unjustly limited in accomplishing these purposes, it must strike back. The progressive bloc in congress will have our hearty support in efforts to bring about the repeal of the Esch-Cummings act and to end rule by injunction. We also favor direct election of president and vice-president.

"Threatening the continued development of America we have two widely separated elements. One, the so-called radicals, would pull down many functioning institutions without any very clear ideas as to how to replace them. The other, the powerful special privilege class, would continue exploiting the nation until their course brought about their destruction."

"Participation in politics by the International Typographical Union for the present will be confined to supplying members with data intended to show which candidates for office are the wisest, fairest and least likely to fall under the domination of those who would exploit farmers, workers and other producers."

An Irishwoman had a quarrel with her husband and the old village priest heard of it. Always anxious to restore peace, wherever possible, the priest called at the woman's house. He found her alone.

The priest shook his head sadly as he looked at her. "Dear, dear," he said, "this is dreadful. Here are you, Mrs. Flannigan, the mother of a family, with your eye blackened, your lip torn, your cheek bruised, and your nose broken. Dreadful, dreadful!"

"Ah, sure, yer rivin'ence," answered the woman somewhat sadly. "Then she added: 'But wait till ye see Flannigan!'"

Saves three ways

Keep gasoline and repair bills down with Associated Gasoline. It saves in three ways. It has greater energy value, which "means more miles to the gallon" and less money for gasoline. It is so perfected that every drop is consumed in the combustion chambers, preventing dilution of crank case oil and saving your engine from damage. It gives instant ignition in cold motors, which reduces the heavy strain on your battery. It is the all-around, year-around economy gasoline.

Buy Associated Gasoline where you see the Associated Sign shown here. It identifies a good dealer.

JAPANESE SANTA CLAUS HOLDS PARTY

Japan Art and Tea Co. Proprietor Distributes Many Prizes

There was a very interesting gathering at the Chamber of Commerce Wednesday night when the Japanese merchant, K. Kuranaga, proprietor of the Japan Art and Tea Co., at 125 South Brand, announced the winning tickets following a "grand drawing".
Mr. Kuranaga played the role of a Japanese Santa Claus very satisfactorily and gave gifts right and left with a lavish hand, the grand prize being a beautiful piece of teakwood furniture.
The hall was filled and the guests included many personal friends of the merchant, one of them being City Manager Reeves, who has known Mr. Kuranaga for twenty years or more. He remembers him well as the proprietor of the largest and finest store in Pasadena at that time. Later Mr. Kuranaga became a successful merchant in San Francisco until the earthquake wiped out his business. From there he went to Seattle where the Japanese government put him in charge of its exhibit at the Alaska-Yukon Exposition.
In the early days he was a contractor of Japanese labor for western railroads and he has had a wide and varied experience. Glendale appealed to him as a coming city offering great business possibilities and he is here and has become an ardent booster for it.

TOM MIX LOPES INTO SCREEN AT THE GLENDALE
Tom Mix loped into the screen at the Glendale theater yesterday in the "Fighting Streak", swung his sombrero and cooled his leather for a brief visit to Glendale.
The "Fighting Streak" is a fit companion to the Tom Mix shows of life in the open, skill and daring, breathless escapes and picturesque riding.
The "Fighting Streak" showing the vanishing life of the range, should be seen by every youth of today, for in the years to come the range, now passing, will be quite

"BOSTON BLACKIE" AT THE T. D. & L. TODAY ONLY

A good crook melodrama with a brand new angle is a rare and pleasing thing in the movies. "The Face in the Fog," featuring Lionel Barrymore and Seena Owen is said to furnish just such a story. The picture, which is a Paramount, will be seen at the T. D. and L. theatre for the last times today.
"The Face in the Fog" was adapted from one of Jack Boyle's popular "Boston Blackie" stories. Lionel Barrymore is seen as the famous crook. However, in this story, "Blackie" has reformed and is leading the life of a respectable citizen of New York. Quite innocently he and his wife "Mary" become involved in the schemes of a gang of international crooks to rob an expatriated Russian princess of her diamond heirlooms.

Men who can do the things with harrier, horse and revolver that Mix does, will be known among pursuits of men.

HAVE DARK HAIR AND LOOK YOUNG

Nobody Can Tell When You Darken Gray, Faded Hair With Sage Tea

Grandmother kept her hair beautifully darkened, glossy and attractive with a brew of Sage Tea and Sulphur. Whenever her hair took on that dull, faded or streaked appearance, this simple mixture was applied with wonderful effect. By asking at any drug store for "Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound," you will get a large bottle of this old-time recipe, improved by the addition of other ingredients, all ready to use, at very little cost. This simple mixture can be depended upon to restore natural color and beauty to the hair.

A well-known downtown druggist says everybody uses Wyeth's Sage and Sulphur Compound now because it darkens so naturally and evenly that nobody can tell it has been anointed—it's so easy to use, too. You simply dampen a comb or soft brush and draw it through your hair, taking one strand at a time. By morning the gray hair disappears; after another application or two, it is restored to its natural color and looks glossy soft and beautiful.—Adv.

NEW DOLLAR DAY DAWNS AT THE GORDON STORE

Mr. Gordon, of Gordon's Store, is very happy over his holiday trade and the patronage given him. Perhaps that is the reason he is giving another of those phenomenal "Dollar Day" sales as a sort of New Year's present to patrons. Any one who questions the bargain to be had should walk up that way on North Brand and see the pretty house dresses in the window, the silk and lisle hose, the silk waists and all the other tempting offerings tagged with the dollar sign. Friday is dollar day at Gordon's and those with Christmas dollars to spend should remember it.

YOU KISSED ME

(Printed by Request)
(According to what appears to be reliable authority this poem was written in 1867 by Miss Celia Gardner, a lady then under twenty years of age. James Redpath, the historian, thought so much of it that he had an edition printed on satin. It attracted the attention of the master poet, John G. Whittier, and when writing concerning it he said its author had truly mastered the science of pure English.)

You kissed me! my head
Dropped low on your breast,
With a feeling of shelter
And infinite rest,
While the holy emotions
My tongue dared not speak
Flashed up a flame
From my heart to my cheek.
Your arms held me fast—
Oh, your arms were so bold!
Heart beat against heart
In your passionate fold.
Your glances seemed drawing
My soul through my eyes,
As the sun draws the mist
From the sea to the skies.
Your lips clung to mine
"Till I prayed in bliss
They might never unclasp
From the rapturous kiss.

You kissed me! my heart,
And my brain, and my will,
In delicious joy
For a moment stood still.
Life had for then
No temptations, no charms,
No visions of happiness
Outside of your arms;
And were I this instant
An angel possessed
Of the peace and the joy
That are given the blest,
I would fling my white robes
Unrepentingly down,
I would tear from my forehead
Its beautiful crown,
To nestle once more
In the haven of rest,
Your lips upon mine,
My head on your breast.

You kissed me! my soul
In a bliss so divine
Reeled and swooned as a drunk'n man
Foolish with wine,
And I thought 'twere delicious
To die there, if death
Would come while my lips
Were yet moist with your breath;
If my heart might grow cold
While your arms clasped me round
In your passionate fold,
And these are the questions
I ask day and night:
Must my lips taste no more
Such exquisite delight?
Would you care if my breast
Were my shelter as then,
And if you were here
Would you kiss me again?

He was not gifted with much brains, but he had courted Arabella ardently. Finally, she accepted him, and he went home full of joy. He felt he must write to her, to relieve himself of the great happiness within him.
Next morning she received the following note:
"Dearest Arabella—I love you with all the passion the world has ever known. I would sacrifice everything I have for you. I would swim the deepest torrents, climb the highest mountains, and go through valleys of fire to be at your side. Lovingly, John."
"P. S.—I will come to see you on Saturday if it doesn't rain."

The British Weekly tells the following story of Lady Astor and her old negro nurse, whom she met again during her recent visit to America. Lady Astor was showing Aunt Betty the picture of Cliveden, her beautiful home on the Thames, with its wonderful lawns and handsome house. Aunt Betty looked at the picture, looked at Lord Astor, looked at Lady Astor. Then she delivered herself as follows: "Well, Miss Nancy, all I've got to say is that you suitingly did overmarry yourself."

Fortunately for stupid people, the weather changes often enough to give them something to talk about.

OLD 1922 HAD BUSY BOXING YEAR

By HENRY L. FARRELL
United Press Sports Editor

NEW YORK, Dec. 28.—In furnishing a big ring spectacle, the year 1922 failed in its duty. While there was nothing to interest the world like another Dempsey-Carpenter affair, there was enough doing of domestic importance to make it go down as an interesting and successful year.

Jack Dempsey was idle for the entire year, not that he was not willing, perhaps, but because the one available "million dollar" opponent was Harry Wills and the hands that direct boxing around the big money centers considered this year, with elections and other things, as an inappropriate time to cause any racial discussion with a mixed bout for the title.
Dempsey's rather cool reception of the suggestions for a bout with Wills was interpreted in some circles as fear of the colored man, but it is a fact that Dempsey was told he could not fight Wills this year and that the bout could be staged next year in New York.
Dempsey also is a good enough business man to know that it would help to steam up the bout if he allowed the impression to prevail that he was afraid of Wills.

While Dempsey was rather out of the spotlight, his friend, Georges Carpentier, stepped into plenty of the calcium. Georges lost three of his titles when Battling Siki tapped him on the jaw and knocked him out, thereby becoming European heavyweight and world's light heavyweight champion and the French heavyweight champion.

Siki's glory was short-lived. The adulation of the French people spoiled him and he became such a nuisance to the Parisians that he was suspended for nine months and his titles were taken away from him.

Removing of title by legislation is a novelty in pugilism and although he may not be considered a three-way champion in France, he will be looked upon as such by the ordinary fan until he is bumped on the chin.

The same assumption of the superiority of the pen over the fist on the part of the New York boxing commission was one of the features of the year.

Because Johnny Kilbane and Johnny Wilson refused to defend their titles, the commission "ordered them beaten" and named Johnny Dundee as the featherweight champion and Dave Rosenberg as the middleweight titleholder.

Things went all right as far as the featherweight tangle was concerned, but the commission got itself into a terrible jam by mixing in the middleweight tangle.

The commission ordered Johnny Dundee and Danny Frush, who had challenged for the title to fight it out and Dundee became the featherweight champion by knocking out Frush.

Before he had won the American light heavyweight championship from Gene Tunney, Harry Greb had done much talking about forcing a fight with Johnny Wilson and when Wilson refused to fight him, the commission ordered his title removed and suggested that Greb and Dave Rosenberg meet for the title. Greb refused and he was suspended. Finally Rosenberg got in the ring with O'Dowd and lost the decision, the title and all of his purse on a foul.

Johnny Buff was the champion loser of the year. He dropped his bantamweight title to Joe Lynch, former champion, and his American flyweight championship to Pancho Villa.

Jack Britton finally succumbed to the handicap of old age and he lost his welterweight championship to Mickey Walker, a young New Jersey lad.

Benny Leonard managed to retain his lightweight championship but he lost a lot of his prestige. He was nearly knocked out in his fight in Jersey City with Lew Tendler, the Philadelphia southpaw, and his fouling of Jack Britton did not add any glory to his record.

PLAYING WITH FIRE
Homer—I see a big publication is going to run a special edition every week, called, "The Tell the Truth edition."
Putter—What do they want to do? Start a revolution, cyclone, tornado or something?
A titled English woman, who lives in a block of flats, wanted a day without visitors. She went down in the elevator and told both the porter and the microscopic elevator boy that she was "not at home."

In spite of her journey, during the afternoon the elevator boy took up some visitors, who caught her, when the maid opened the door, helping to spring clean the hall. Trouble ensued for both the porter and the boy.

"Young varmint that you are," said the porter to his subordinate, "takin' visitors up an' them catchin' 'er ladyship, when you heard her say she wasn't at 'ome."
"Yes," said the unrepentant elevator boy, "but 'er ladyship says an' what I knows is two different things."

The Once Over

By H. I. PHILLIPS

THE LOAN TO GERMANY
The Harding administration is now considering a loan to Germany. The cabinet had discussed it, Ambassador Harvey, author of "Have Women Souls?" has been called to Washington; J. P. Morgan has been to see the President, and Otto Weidfeldt, German ambassador to the Land of the Free and the Home of the Easy, has conferred with Secretary Hughes.

When in need of America, as the old slogan goes, see America First!

Nearly everybody agrees Germany is in a bad way financially. The problem is to put her on her feet and take her off the Allies' hands. Answer to the problem: Let Sam do it!

The present proposition is for the United States to arrange a loan of a couple of billion through private bankers. Two years ago Henry Cabot Lodge would have emitted a shrill squeak, flopped backward, and expired on the Senate floor at the mention of such an idea. A suggestion like that would have ruined President Harding's golf form. The Grand Old Party would have shrieked for the Spirits of Ammonia.

Everybody was for the Monroe Doctrine, with particular emphasis on the "mon," and against all entangling I. O. U.'s.

That was before the Kaiser wrote his memoirs and explained that Germany didn't know there was a war on until she had been in it for over three years.

The Kaiser has shown his genuine desire to atone by getting married; the captain of the Emden has indicated he had nothing against America, by coming here on a lecture tour, and the gunner on the German submarine that sank the Lusitania has shown us he is willing to let bygones be bygones by paying us an extended visit.

In short, Germany has indicated in every way that she is willing to forgive us everything!!!

Accordingly there is a feeling in Washington that it would be very mean to turn around and tell her there isn't any Santa Claus.

Germany believes in Santa Claus. This year more than ever. That there is nothing in her stocking is the testimony of all visitors, but whether there is anything up her sleeve is another matter.

"Out of the heck shop by Christmas!" is the Berlin Yuletide cry.

Germany must not be pushed beyond her capacity to pay, according to Washington conclusions. But France is strong for saying it with pushes. France wants to invade the Ruhr, whatever that is. This is in accordance with the historic French policy—Rule or Ruhrin!

Every week since the armistice some French leader has demanded an invasion of the Ruhr. This keeps the Ruhrarians or whatever you call them very jumpy. They never know when they go to bed at night under what flag they will awaken in the morning.

France is the only nation that didn't hear the referee blow the whistle for the end of the final period. All she got out of the war was Battling Siki, and she's naturally a bit keen for overtime.

Meanwhile the big question is, Will Uncle Sam borrow Charlie Hughes' whiskers and Harry Daugherty's red vest and play Santa. The idea isn't to lend Germany money enough to pay her war debts. The loan is to be marked "For Internal Use Only." It is to be loaned exclusively to help Germany get off her back and start instructions under Dr. Cough.
